About this DokuWiki:

This is a tailored copy of DokuWiki. The idea is to create a theme that focuses attention on organized content as opposed to the wiki framework. So:

1) The wiki framework is visually deemphasized
2) Conceptual blocks are placed in separate white boxes on a dark background

The result should be readable even on smartphones.

Thoughts about DokuWiki:

If DokuWiki is configured and patched appropriately, it's both nice and simple. We like it:

1) No databases are needed. Pages are human-readable text files.
2) There are quite a few plugins. Some are obsolete, but many seem to work.
3) It's easy for developers to add their own text macros and/or plugins.

This said, tweaks are recommended. The subpages linked above discuss some of the changes involved.
